Look Before You Back

Introduction

Perhaps the most preventable and inexcusable accident is caused by backing into a parked auto or a fixed object. You should never be guilty of this type of error as a professional driver.

Check Around Before You Enter Your Vehicle

Investigate all around the outside of your vehicle for possible hazards which cannot be seen from the driver's seat. This includes improperly parked vehicles next to yours, children and toys in driveways, and low objects such as hydrants, posts, abutments and fences. This investigative precaution is a good investment of only a second or two of your time.

In The Driver's Seat

Keep your foot on the brake as you shift into reverse. Then, before starting to back, check traffic on both sides as well as the rear. Make sure nothing is hidden ~ "blind spots." Don't rely on your mirrors! Get help to guide you if you can't avoid "blind spots."

Know When and Where To Back

Driving in reverse normally should cover the shortest span possible -- from inches to feet, not half a block. It should be a means of reaching a spot that will enable you to move forward quickly into the flow of traffic.

Never back down a street looking for a missed address. And, never back uphill or across lanes of traffic. It's always wiser to drive around the block than to risk a conflict with oncoming traffic.

Be Sure You're Seen

When backing, move slowly -- sound your horn before proceeding if there is any doubt that other traffic can see you.

Avoid Backing

You can't always avoid backing, but if you can it may prevent an accident.
